THE LATE PEACE INTERVIEW. A Circular from the Rebel State Department. Mr. Benjamin, the rebel Secretary of State, has issued a circular addressed to Mr. Mason, their commissioner in Europe, in relation to the recent peace mission of Mr. Gilmore and Colonel Jacques to Richmond. After detailing the means by which they reached Rich-mond and the interview he had with them before introducing them to Jeff. Davis, Mr.

Benjamin says:
"The interview, connected with the report previously made by Colonel Ould, left on my mind the decided impression that Mr Lincoln was averse to sending formal commissioners to open negotiations, lest he might thereby be deemed to have recognized the independence of the Confederacy, and that he was anxious to learn whether the conditions on which alone he would be willing to take such a step would be yielded by the Confederacy; that with this view he had placed his messengers in a condition to satisfy us that they really came from him, without committing himself to anything in the event of a disagreement to such conditions as he considered to be indispensable. On informing the President, therefore, of my conclusions, he determined that no question of form or etiquette should be an obstacle to his receiving any overtures that promised however remotely, to result in putting an end to the carnage which marked the continuance of hostili-

"The President came to my office at 9 o'clock in the evening, and Col. Ould came a few moments later, with Messrs. Jacques and Gilmore. The President said to them that he heard, from me, that they came as messengers of peace from Mr. Lincoln; that as such they were welcome; that the Confederacy had never concealed its desire for peace, and that he was ready to hear whatever they had to offer on

"Mr Gilmore then addressed the President and in a few minutes had conveyed the information that these gentlemen had the idea that this government would accept a peace on a basis of reconstruction of the Union, the abolition of slavery, and the grant of an amnesty to the people of the States as repentant criminals. In order to accomplish the abolition of slavery, it was proposed that there should be a general vote of all the people of both federations, in mass, and the majority of the vote thus taken was to determine that as well as all other disputed questions. These were well stated to be Mr. Lincoln's views. The President answered that as these proposals had been prefaced by the remark that the people of the North were a majority, and that the majority ought to govern, the offer was in effect, a prorender at discretion, admit that they had been wrong from the beginning of the contest, submit to the mercies of their enemies, and avow themselves to be in need of pardon for their crimes; that extermination was preferable to dishonor.

"He stated that if they were themselves so unacquainted with the form of their own government as to make such propositions, Mr. Lincoln ought to have known, when giving them his views, that it was out of the power of the Confederate government to act on the subject of the domestic institutions of the several States, each State having exclusive jurisdic-tion on that point, still less to commit the decision of such a question to the vote of a foreign people; that the separation of the States was an accomplished fact; hat he had no authority to receive proposals for negotiation except by virtue of his office as President of an independent Confederacy; and on this basis alone must proposals be made to him.

"At one period of the conversation Mr. Gilmore made use of some language referring to these States as "rebels," while rendering an account of Mr. Lincoln's views, and apologized for the word. The President desired him to proceed, that no offence was taken, and that he wished Mr. Lincoln's language to be res exactly further conversation took place, substantially to the same effect as the foregoing, when the President rose to indicate that the interview was at an end. The two gentlemen were then recommitted to the charge of Colonel Ould, and left Richmond the next day.

"This account of the visit of Messrs. Gilmore and Jacques to Richmond has been rendered necessary by publications made by one or both of them since their return to the United States, notwithstanding the agreement that their visit was to be kept secret. They have perhaps concluded that as the promise of secrecy was made at their request, it was permis-sible to disregard it. We have no reason for desiring to conceal what occurred, and have therefore no complaint to make of the publicity given to the fact of the visit. The extreme inaccuracy of Mr. Gilmore's narrative willbe apparent to you from the foregoing statement.

"You have no doubt seen in the Northern papers an account of another conference on the subject of peace, which took place in Canada, at about the same date, between Messrs. C. C. Clay and J. P. Holcombe, Confederate citizens of the highest character and position, and Mr. Horace Greely, of New York, acting with authority of President Lincoln. It is deemed not improper to inform you that Messrs. Clay and Holcombe, although enjoying in an eminent degree the confidence and esteem of the President, were strictly accurate in their statement that they were without any authority from this government to treat with that of the United States on any subject whatever.

"We had no knowledge of their conference with Mr. Greely, nor of their proposed visit to Washington, 'ill wesaw the newspaper publications. A significant confirmation of the truth of the statement of Messrs. Gilmore and Jacques, that they came as messengers from Mr. Lincoln, is to be found in the fact that the views of Mr. Lincoln, as stated by them to the President, are in exact conformity with the offensive paper addressed to "Whom it may concern, which was sent by Mr. Lincoln to Messrs. Clay and Holcombe by the hands of his private secretary, Mr. Hay, and which was properly regarded by those gentlemen as an intimation that Mr. Lincoln was unwilling that this war should cease while in his power to continue hostilities.

SAUSAGES .- At a meeting of the Board of Health, the health officer, Dr. Jones, reported the case of a man named A. Meherten, residing on the corner of Navy and Tillary streets, who manufactures the bodies of dead animals, such as horses, &c., into sausage meat, and prepared the entrails for sausage cases. The place was indicted as a nuisance, and the enterprising German who prepares the horrible food was ordered to be arrested .- N. Y Com.

Lincoln, Mass., is death on pickles. Many of the farmers have from one to five, and even ten acres devoted to this product. This season is very favorable to the business. One man, from two and a half acres, has gathered at two pickings 67,000 pickles; another gathered from his five acres, at one picking, 80,000. This was regarded as an extraordinary yield. Another man has realized from his ten acres planted with cucumbers, in one season, $1,200.

A SSISTANT QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, FORAGE AND RIVER TRANSPORTATION SEVENTH STREET WHARF, WASHINGTON, D. C., August 25, 1864.

CIBCULAR.

In accordance with instructions from Brigadier General D. H. Rucker, Chief Quartermaster, Depot of Washington. I have placed schooners at Upper and Lower Cedar Points, in the positions occupied by the light boats, previous to their destruction by the rebels.

From support patil supplied light occupied by the light boats, previous to their destruction by the rebels.

From surset until sunrise a light will be swung from each of the schoolers. The reason given by captains of vessels, chartered and owned by the United States Quartermaster Department, for archering in the Petomac river at night, was, that they feared that they would run their vessels aground if they attempted to run past the shoals after dark. The lamps placed on the schoolers will give a light sufficiently strong to enable all pilots to pass up and down the river with safety, provided they govern themselves by the charts provided by United States Coast Survey.

From and after this date, no vessel propelled by steam will be allowed to anchor, excepting in such weather as by running the loss of the vessel or eargo might be endangered.

All masters of vessels are directed to report any neglect on the part of the parties on board of the light schoolers, in not keeping their lights burning at all hours of the night.

A copy of this circular will be kept posted in the pilot house of every vessel ewned and chartered by the Government, plying on the Potomac river.
